Scotland air crash mars holiday for local family

By BARBARA ALBERT
and FLORENCE MECKS
ANP Staff Writers

A 20-year-old Romulus man was among the 258 people killed when Pan Am Flight 103 crashed Wednesday night en route to New York.

Kenneth James Gibson was killed when the jetliner exploded over Scotland.

Gibson will be missed, as his family gathers to celebrate Christmas, a Christmas they had hoped to share with the son they had not seen in more than one year.

"This would have been the first time we had seen him since we went to Berlin," said Ruth Gibson, as she tried to choke back the tears.

Ruth and Larry Gibson, of 15030 Colbert St., will mourn the loss of their eldest son for some time.

The Gibsons have three other children, Lisa, 18; Eric, 14; and Jason, 12.

Kenneth, a specialist 4 in the U.S. Army, was stationed in West Berlin. He was given a leave of absence to spend the holidays with his family.

"He was supposed to be on an earlier flight, but he missed the plane," Ruth said.

Ruth heard of the airplane crash from a friend at work. After hearing the news, she waged a desperate attempt to contact her son or anyone else who could confirm her fears. "Everyone kept giving us the runaround. It was so difficult to get information," Ruth said.

Thirteen hours after the crash of flight 103, the Gibsons received confirmation that their son was dead.

Pan Am Flight 103 departed from West Germany en route to New York, with a connecting flight to Detroit. The plane exploded while passing over Scotland and crashed into the ground. There were no survivors.

The exact cause of the crash is unknown, although investigators are considering the possibility that a bomb was planted aboard the airplane.

For the Gibsons, the investigation is unimportant. The fact that their son is lost forever is paramount.

Kenneth Gibson attended Romulus High School and later earned his high-school diploma. He joined the army shortly after his 18th birthday and was transferred to Berlin approximately one year ago. He would have been 21 in February.

Memories

Resident remembers living a British-style Christmas

By FLORENCE MECKS
ANP Staff Writer

The celebration of Christmas has changed dramatically since Romulus resident Frank Andrews was a boy in England.

Andrews, 89, spent the first 21 years of his life in the small village of Pool, located on the southwest tip of the country.

During his childhood, cricket and soccer were popular games. Toddlers went to infant school, not kindergarten. Older children went to a council school and studied for standards, not grades, Andrews said. Most of the homes in the village were made of stone. He suspects his was at least 200 years old when he lived there. Some buildings in the village date to the 1500s.

Andrews recalls a much greater emphasis on the church during his childhood Christmases.

"We didn't go into a lot of the nonsense they do today," he said. "Our church was the main center of attraction."

It was in his church that Andrews heard tales of Father Christmas (a close relative of Santa Claus). Father Christmas sported a long white beard but otherwise dressed like everyone else, Andrews said.

From Father Christmas, Andrews and his brother and sister received "nices." The gifts, which were placed in stockings, included sweets, nuts and bits of fruit. Eucalyptus gums (similar to cough drops) were also popular, Andrews said.

In church, local children were allowed to sing Christmas carols. Usually, the children sang inside the church or in the center of the village.

Popular with Andrews was the Christmas feast and the traditional plum pudding. This delicacy, made with suet and currants, is still considered a special Christmas treat in England.

Nevertheless, Christmas Day was simple, Andrews said.

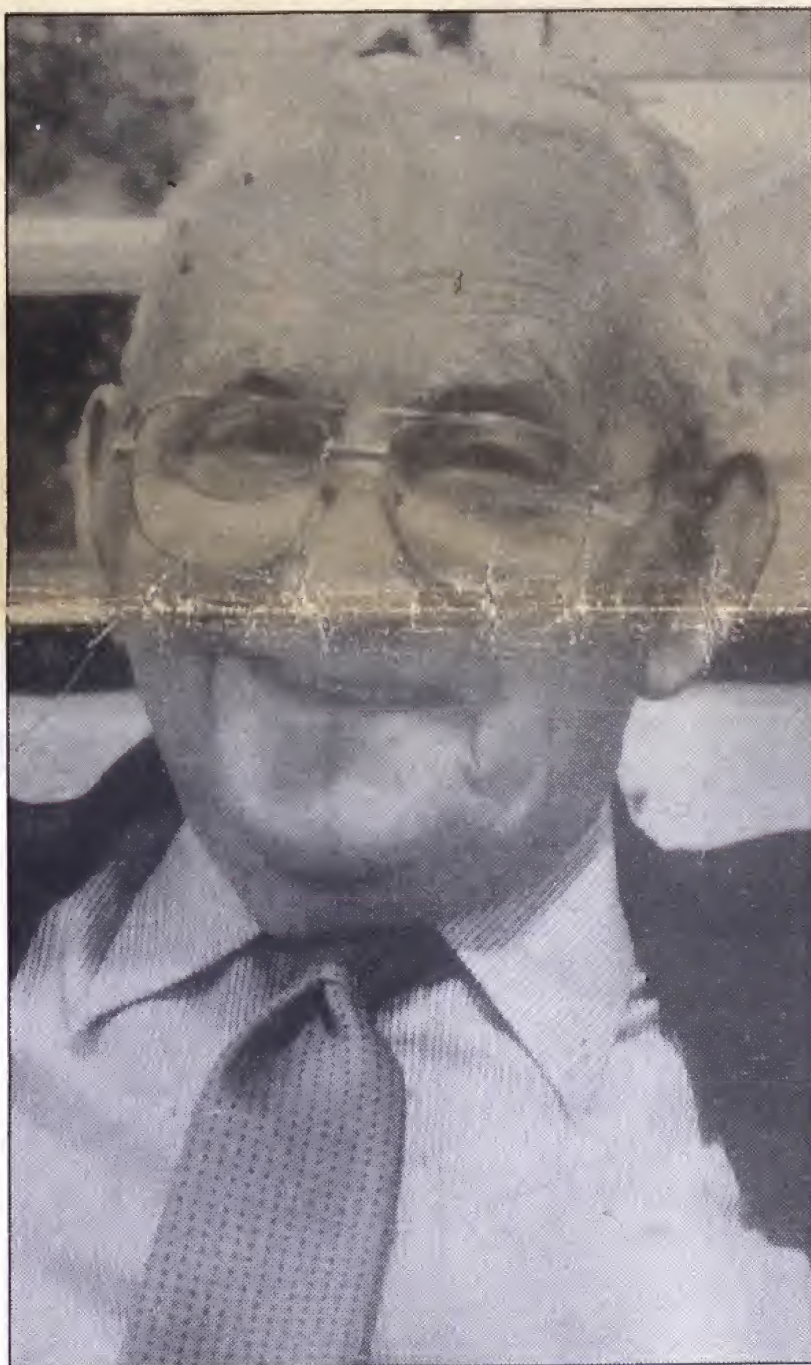

"We didn't go into the expensive things," he explained.

His parents did not display a Christmas tree, and very few decorations were used to adorn the house. In addition, adults did not receive presents.

"We celebrated because of the birth of Christ," Andrews said.

When hard times hit his village, after the end of World War II, Andrews settled in the United States. He lived in Allen Park from 1920 to 1950. He and his wife then moved to Romulus, where they have remained.

Christmas for Andrew's three children included trees and Santa Claus. But Andrews also tried to emphasize the importance of the holiday by sharing his stories of Christmas in England.

Teen health proposal is expected in March

By FLORENCE MECKS
ANP Staff Writer

Members of the controversial Romulus Adolescent Health Advisory Committee are scheduled to render a decision soon to the Romulus school board about the health needs of local teenagers.

RAHAC project Director Kathleen Conway expects such a recommendation in March. Meanwhile, a number of local parents continue to voice concerns about one committee option, a teen health center.

Protestors of the health center fear it would provide birth-control services, undermine parental authority and encourage promiscuity among young people.

Currently, committee members meet bimonthly, considering possible options and overseeing the project, Conway said. Once a recommendation is given, the committee members will be responsible for the implementation of any proposals approved by school-board members.

If group members propose a teen-health center, Conway said, members must select possible locations and draft a parental-consent form.

Members of a subcommittee are also currently studying results of a 1988 survey and interviews with county health department, city police department and city of Romulus officials and the school nurse. That information will be presented to the full committee during a January meeting, Conway said.

The largest gap in teen health needs already pinpointed, Conway said, is in basic medical care.

"There are not many physicians in the city," she said.

Another gap is the lack of available mental-health counseling. Most facilities are located in outside communities, such as Taylor and Westland, Conway said.

In addition, two counselors at the junior high school and four at the high school are not enough, Conway said.

"We would like to send (students) down the hall instead of to Taylor," Conway said.

A third gap exists in facilities dealing with substance abuse. Conway said the existing Romulus Help Center offers valuable services but operates with limited staffing and funding.

"There certainly could be much more done," Conway said.

Needed services include counseling for drug users and relatives of drug users and ser-

Wall is considered to block noises of highway motorists

By FLORENCE MECKS
ANP Staff Writer

A wall to block traffic noises is being considered along eastbound I-94, between Ozga and Shook roads, according to Michigan Department of Transportation officials.

"I am pleased to say that this noise wall along eastbound I-94 has been recommended to be built in fiscal year 1990," said George Robert Adams, deputy director of the state Bureau of Transportation Planning.

Romulus Mayor Beverly McAnally had requested the wall. A more specific time frame for actual construction will not be known until after a design is created, Adams said.

Originally, a tentative project was suggested for both sides of I-94, between Ozga and Shook roads. The estimated cost was $1.2 million, according to Adams.

members to divide the program into two phases, Adams said.

The $700,000 allocated each year throughout the state for retrofit noise abatement will be used to fund the first phase of the project.

The eastbound-traffic noise-wall was selected first, Adams said, because of the homes that line the roadway.

The second phase of the project will be considered as a 1991 project, Adams said.

Design work on phase I is scheduled to begin in February.

Resolutions

Classes offered to fulfill career goals

By JOAN MARY DYER
ANP Belleville City Editor

If self-improvement or career development are listed among your resolutions for 1989, classes at the Western Campus of Wayne County Community College may be the first step in their fulfillment.

Prospective students may arrange for a free campus tour and meeting with a counselor to determine which classes will best suit the needs of the students. Opportunities also may be investigated through the Career Explorer — also a free service at the campus.

The center, located at 9555 Haggerty Road near I-94, offers career programs in business, computer data processing, electrical/electronics, diesel engine mechanics, nursing, secretarial science and heating/ventilating/air conditioning.

Transfer courses, which may be used at most senior institutions, are offered at the two-year community college. Among the transfer courses routinely offered at the Western Campus are anthropology, art, astronomy, biology, economics, history, humanities, mathematics, philosophy, physics and chemistry. In addition, classes are conducted in English composition, English Literature, French, political science, psychology, sociology, social science, speech and women's studies.

The campus features flexible class schedules, transferable courses, child care facilities, free parking and the lowest college tuition in the area. Financial aid is available for qualified students for the term beginning the week of Jan. 22.

Information can be obtained by visiting the campus or by calling 699-0200.

Dreaming: Romulus woman models her career

April Gatt's career dream is to become a model. She has hoped for a modeling success story since she was a child. ANP photo by Ann Grimes/staff photographer

By FLORENCE MEEKS
ANP Staff Writer

After years of dreaming, local resident April Gatt has decided to pursue her goal. For as long as she can remember, Gatt has wanted to be a model. She was inspired by television pageants and beautiful women featured in magazines.

When she was a teenager, Gatt tried her hand at modeling by posing for a beginning photographer building a portfolio. No money was exchanged, but both benefited from the experience.

However, Gatt stopped pursuing her dream after being discouraged by two unpleasant employers.

Years later, Gatt has decided to give modeling another try. The temptation is "just too great."

"There's a lot of good work out there. You just have to find the right people," Gatt said.

Enrolling in a reputable modeling school, which she has done, is a crucial first-step to a modeling career, Gatt explained.

"They give you that first touch of professional modeling," Gatt said.

In addition, graduates automatically belong to the school modeling agency and have an option to join others.

Classes concentrate on make-up, nails, hair, hand gestures, skin, diet and exercise, Gatt said. Students are given modeling assignments for experience. The final exam is a fashion show.

Gatt admits that modeling is a challenge. Models must face numerous auditions and "go-sees." The latter occurs when photographers want to see what kind of models are applying for a particular job.

Sometimes, models will be called in for "go-sees" even when jobs do not exist.

"It's a challenge to have to face up to it," Gatt said.

Models are also expected to live up to an image. Illness or bad moods are unacceptable in the modeling world.

"You always have to portray the image of being very bubbly," Gatt explained. Nevertheless, Gatt enjoys modeling so much that the negative aspects have not yet become a problem.

To date, Gatt has worked on two assignments. Both involved mannequin modeling in Ann Arbor malls.

"You have to stand on a stage in the middle of the mall. People aren't sure if you're real," Gatt said.

Mannequin models must strike a pose and hold it for 15-minute intervals. Gatt describes the work as "tiring but fun."

For now, Gatt has 12 weeks of classes to complete at John Cassablanca Modeling School, in Plymouth. She continues to look for modeling jobs and to hold on to her dream. She also is busy in her job as an office manager and housewife.

She was married four months ago.

Schools net state funds for partnership program

By FLORENCE MEEKS
ANP Staff Writer

Romulus Community Schools is one of 25 Michigan districts to receive a grant from the Michigan State Board of Education to begin a local "Partnership for Education" program.

The program involves local business people, schools and the city government working together to prepare students for the modern job world, according to Ed Clark, program director for Romulus. Romulus school officials had planned to launch the program regardless of the state grant.

The partnership program is already in place throughout the country, Clark said.

"Our school board saw a need for our schools to become involved, so we jumped on the bandwagon," Clark said.

The first step of the program — the formation of an advisory council — was completed in September.

The council is composed of representatives from local businesses and government offices, including the Romulus Hotel Association, Federal Mogul, Security Bank & Trust, Kerr Manufacturing, the Romulus Chamber of Commerce, Chevrolet-Pontiac-Canada Group, Saint's Inc., the city of Romulus and Romulus Community Schools.

"The businesses will tell us what students will need for future training," Clark said.

The next step of the program is actual partnerships between businesses and schools. One such agreement has already been established between Federal Mogul and Halecreek Elementary School, Clark said. Four additional partnerships are also being considered. All area are expected to be secured in late January.

Involvement between the businesses and schools will vary in each partnership. Some business representatives will offer tutoring during a semester. Others will provide a speaker, who will appear once during the school year. Officials from several businesses are encouraging good attendance and grades with incentives, such as T-shirts or certificates.

Another possibility is a staff interchange. Representatives from a business would tour the partner school. In turn, teachers from the school would tour the business facility.

"It's an opportunity for our teaching staff to work with these businesses, to visit the facilities... then go back to the classroom and make the teaching more relevant," Clark said. "Students will be made aware of what is available to them."

The program is designed for all students, not only those who will soon enter the job market, Clark continued.

"They shouldn't wait until 11th or 12th grade to decide on careers," Clark explained.

The grant received for the program will help fund learning materials, printing and workshops. The partnerships are voluntary agreements, and no money will be exchanged between businesses and schools, Clark said.

"The purpose of the program is sharing resources," he said.

Clark feels the Romulus district was selected for the grant because the partnership program was already in the works when he applied. The state Department of Education received 87 applications for grants, and 25 were funded.

"Maybe we were selected because we worked so closely with the mayor and the city council, making sure the program got off the ground," Clark said. "How many communities have you heard of where all factions pull together for one purpose?"

A kick-off for the partnership program will be staged Jan. 19, at the Ramada Inn.

School employees are recognized

Because of their willingness to perform beyond the call of duty, six employees of the Romulus school district were recently recognized as "Extra-Milers" by members of the board of education.

The honorees for November were Richard Kruse, junior high band director, and John DeForest, Cory Elementary School head custodian. Honorees for December are Arthur McPharlin, principal of Halecreek Elementary School, and Robert Garry, head custodian of Halecreek Elementary School. January honorees are Virginia Smith, teacher at Merriman Elementary School and Alan Abdo, in charge of maintenance at the senior high school.

Nominations for the award are made by district employees and former awardees selected by a screening committee consisting of three board of education trustees and five representatives of employee groups.

Awardees received special recognition, plaques and gift certificates.

Metro Airport officials offer advice

By FLORENCE MEEKS
ANP Staff Writer

Braving a crowded airport during the holidays usually requires patience and a specific plan of action in order to ensure one's sanity.

More than one million people will have traveled through the Detroit Metropolitan Airport, in Romulus, between Dec. 19 and Jan. 6, according to airport spokesperson Mike Conway. The busiest days are Dec. 23, Dec. 26 and Jan. 2.

"We advise people to arrive at the airport an hour and one-half early," he said. "You just can't arrive 15 minutes in advance."

Conway suggested completing luggage tickets in advance, rather than at the last minute in line.

"It keeps traffic in front of the terminal building moving," Conway said.

Several airport services are available to make traveling easier. Among these is a parking hotline. A recorded message supplies hourly reports on parking conditions throughout the airport.

The holiday hotline, Conway said, has improved parking conditions since it was introduced for Easter 1986. Travelers head directly for the parking spots they know are open. The hotline number is 942-3838.

An 500-space overflow parking lot is also available, Conway said. Thus, there is little danger of all airport parking spaces being filled. The lot was originally used for employees.

"We haven't needed it yet," Conway said.

For those who park in remote lots, emergency call-boxes are available. Previously, cable telephones were available in some parking areas, but they were difficult to provide in remote areas, Conway said.

The new telephones are cellular. They have two buttons, one for information, one for emergencies.

The phones are usually used by travelers who forgot where they parked or for those who discover their cars have dead batteries, Conway said. Dead batteries are the most common problem for travelers, often because people forget to deactivate car alarms.

A steady flow of aircrafts causes continuous vibrations that set off the alarms. An emergency service is also available.

Conway also urged motorists to not park in front of the airline terminals.

"Three minutes turn into 30, and you're car ends up being towed," Conway said. "If you have business for inside the terminal, use the short-term lot" he added.

In all, airport travel does not have to be unpleasant during the holidays, Conway said.

"Television gives people the impression this is an awful place to be during the holidays," he said. "It's actually a pleasant place to be. You see a lot of hugging," he said.

vices for prevention, such as support groups, Conway said.

Another problem faced by Romulus youths is sexual abuse, Conway said. County health-department officials report a fairly high rate of abuse in the community, yet a specific source of help for the problem is not available.

"The things these kids are dealing with are not that different from other communities," Conway said. "The advantage here is we're trying to identify the problems and deal with them."

Despite some citizens' outcries, dealing with sexual activity and teen pregnancies are problems in Romulus, Conway said. A high level of sexual activity was reported among junior and senior high schools, she continued, but students are finding services to meet their needs.

"There are services available for the kids. It seems to be the one area kids manage to find clinics," Conway said.

Officials from a family-planning clinic near the high school have reported that many young people are requesting pregnancy tests.

Thus, Conway said, committee members are not discovering a need for a health center that would provide birth-control services, Conway said. Even if members did see a need in that area, she added, providing birth-control services or abortions is illegal in a school-based facility.

Nevertheless, a teen-health center is only one of several possible committee recommendations, including those for better transportation services and assistants to the one school nurse serving the district.

One of the biggest problems faced during the health study, Conway said, is the amount of misinformation being released.

Some parents fear a teen health center would undermine their authority. Conway disagrees.

"It is not an accurate argument," Conway said. "Parents must be informed and involved. None of the (existing) health centers try to do things behind the parents' backs."

Conway also disputed accusations that the surveys used by committee members are not accurate because they were only answered by a small percentage of students and parents.

Last school year, surveys were distributed to Romulus students, from seventh to 12th grades. Seventy-nine percent of the surveys were returned, Conway said.

Another survey was mailed to all parents of students in grades six to 12. A 27.2-percent response was received.

"The average response you can expect from a mailed survey is 8 percent," Conway said. "The school board is used to a great deal of apathy on the part of parents."

The surveys, she continued, are only one source of information studied by committee members.

'Old salts'

Area officials have winter roadways covered

By JIM RINK
ANP Staff Writer

Local officials won't predict what kind of winter to expect in western Wayne County this year, but they can promise there will be plenty of road salt and plowing equipment on hand to keep the streets open.

In Belleville, city officials have budgeted $5,000 in 1988-89 for salt. The city stockpiled 200 tons of salt in 1987-88 and expects to use the same amount this year.

Tim Ard, director of public works for the city, said he paid $18.60 per ton for salt last year and $21.50 per ton in 1988-89. Ard said he takes advantage of a state-sponsored purchasing plan.

"The state of Michigan gets orders from everybody and lumps the tonnage together," Ard said. "The state gets bids on a vast amount of salt. It's approximately $2 per ton cheaper that way."

In Belleville, Ard has at his disposal two pickup trucks with plows and a dump truck with plow. Cost for operating the trucks is approximately $17.68 per hour, not counting operator wages.

The city of Wayne will use more than 2,000 tons of salt this year to keep 14.52 miles of its streets passable. Wayne officials paid $19.84 per ton for salt in 1988-89, approximately $3 per ton more than in 1987-88.

The city maintains five dump trucks with salt spreaders at a cost of $35 per hour. Total winter maintenance costs in 1987-88 were $110,679. Budgeted for 1988-89 was $133,200.

"We don't plan how much salt we're going to use," said Gary Clark, spokesman for the city. "You do what you have to do. We have adequate salt on hand."

Clark said Wayne County road crews maintain the main roads in Wayne, such as Michigan Avenue and Wayne Road. The city salts and plows the secondary streets.

"In some areas, we use sand," Clark said. "But it's not really a substitute for salt. We use calcium chloride on the sidewalks. It's a different breakdown. It tends not to kill the grass as much."

Local municipalities are investigating a salt substitute, said Ard, in light of some concerns about how salt affects the groundwater. So far, he said, the only practical substitutes are too expensive to consider.

"Calcium magnesium acetate is one experimental substitute," Ard said. "It costs $300 per ton. They used it on the Zilwaukee Bridge, but they're not happy with it. We'd have to use twice as much to get the job done, at a cost of $1.25 million."

Ard said that if state legislators ever pass a law outlawing the use of salt on roads, "it would be repealed after the first snow storm."

In Canton Township, road crews are responsible for only the area surrounding the township hall and DPW building. Wayne County crews take care of the majority of roads in the township, according to Jake Dingeldey, superintendent of public works.

Irma Clark, spokeswoman for the county, said road crews spread an average of 100,000 tons of salt on county roads during an average winter season.

In 1986-87, the county used 65,000 tons of salt during a comparatively mild winter. In 1987-

88, 95,000 tons were used, at a cost of $18 per ton. Salt will cost $2 more per ton this winter for Wayne County.

Total winter maintenance costs for the county in 1987-88 were $4.3 million. Budgeted for 1988-89 is $6.5 million.

"We are budgeting for 150,000 tons of salt," Clark said. "It looks like they're looking for a heavy, severe winter. The biggest winter took place in 1984-85. We used 123,000 tons of salt that year."

More than 700 miles of primary roads in Wayne County need to be plowed, according to Clark, along with 485 miles of state roads and 688 miles of local roads.

In Westland, city road crews contend with 41.38 miles of major roadways, according to Ron Mazur of the city's department of public service. "We used 3,630.34 tons of salt last year," said Mazur, "at a cost of $60,226.80. It's so unpredictable. You never know how much snow to expect."

Mazur said the city does not plow or salt local roads, unless a major storm makes them impassable and city officials declare a snow emergency.

SCHOOL NEWS

SCHOOL NEWS DIGEST

Hayti principal known to schools

A dream of Harold Connon's when he was an eighth-grader in Romulus was to become a teacher. His dream came true 23 years ago, when he began teaching in the Romulus school district.

Three weeks ago, Connon was named principal at Hayti Elementary, in Romulus, filling the position of former principal William Smith, who left for a school in Farmington Hills.

Formerly, Connon worked at Romulus High School, where he handled attendance and vocational programs. He was there for seven years.

A 1956 graduate of Romulus High School, Connon earned undergraduate degrees at Eastern Michigan University and the University of Michigan. In 1965, he received a master of administration from EMU. In 1988, he earned a master of counseling and guidance from EMU.

When Connon came to the Romulus schools, he took the job as principal at Mt. Pleasant Elementary School, which later closed. He was later named principal at Gordonier Elementary, which also closed in 1979. From there, he went to Romulus High School.

Among his hobbies are working on automobiles. Currently, he owns a 1954 Ford Skyliner, which he is trying to restore.

"Mechanically, I need to rebuild the engine, but the body is in pretty good shape," he said.

While at Hayti, Connon hopes to make the school a better place to learn.

"This is a very interesting community and a very supportive staff. I'm very impressed by the people here. I've been working with the PTA, and we're getting some activities together," he said.

Students jumping for area charity

Students at Halecreek Elementary, in Romulus, will jump rope for a cause Jan. 13, as they participate in a fundraiser benefiting the American Heart Association.

The event will be staged during the school day and will feature students jumping rope for money, according to Sheila Stasak, physical education instructor at Halecreek.

"Students are collecting pledges based on that their team will jump rope for three hours. It will last the whole morning. They will come to the gym and begin jumping rope," Stasak said.

The goal is to collect $5,000. Two years ago, Halecreek students collected more than $4,000 during the event.

Halecreek pupils aid the needy

Students at Halecreek Elementary, in Romulus, were more concerned with the gift of receiving than giving this year.

Approximately 360 canned and dry goods were collected by students, according to Molly McGlynn, parent coordinator. In addition, four turkeys were purchased by the school PTA and given to needy families.

"The teachers seemed to encourage this. We have a great group of teachers. We did this collection last year. This year, we doubled our amount collected," McGlynn said. "We wanted the kids to be able to care about others by sharing."

The food was only offered to needy families of the Halecreek community. Each family was contacted, and the food was delivered, she said.

The food drive was coordinated by parents and staff members of Halecreek, including Joanne Sims, Irene Baker, Joanne Bjork, Janet Green, principal Art McPharlin, secretary Mary Ann Banks and custodian Bob Gary.

Romulus teen broadcasts news of Aquinas

By THOMAS M. VARCIE
ANP Staff Writer

Four months ago, being on the radio was only a dream for Michelle Williams and Barbara Henderson.

But, as a result of a program offered by Wayne State University and WJLB-FM, their dreams have come true.

The program, Strong Song Teen Reporters, allows area students to represent their schools through radio broadcasts several times during the week.

Williams, of Romulus, and Henderson, of Inkster, were each chosen to represent their school, Southgate Aquinas High School.

Fifty other students from area high schools have also been given the opportunity to participate in the broadcast.

"This is aimed at encouraging students to continue on with their education after high school," said Jerome Graham, WJLB-FM accounts executive. "It gives them exposure to broadcasting, but it also teaches them a certain discipline which is expected of them when they come to work."

The program began for the students in September, when a teacher told Williams and Henderson of the activity.

"We got into the program through our school. We decided we wanted to represent our school in a positive way," Williams said. "We went to an orientation at WJLB and they told us about the program and they told us what we would have to do."

Williams and Henderson are responsible for gathering news of activities and events occurring in the school. From there, Henderson and Williams go to the radio station and broadcast their reports either Monday, Tuesday or Wednesday.

"Both of us go on the radio and we read the reports that we made. We usually go there around 3 or 5 p.m. and they tape it and play it later," Williams said.

The first time on the radio, according to Henderson, was "a little scary." But she said she overcame her fear quickly.

"I was kind of nervous at first because you knew people were listening to you. I was comfortable after a while. It took me until the second month to be relaxed," Henderson said.

The duo has been broadcasting reports from the radio station since September. Henderson said she has a strong interest in radio broadcasting and journalism. The junior said she plans on working for the Southgate Aquinas school newspaper next semester and for the yearbook next year.

In the future, Henderson said she would like to work at a radio station because of her experience at WJLB.

Williams, also a junior, hopes to study pre-law in college. She does, however, hope to continue the radio program next year.

"This has taught me responsibility and gets me to really know people. I've gotten closer to people in the school and I like it a lot," said Henderson, who said she was inspired by her sister, who participated in the program because it lets the students know within the schools what's going on. They are excited to hear their own students on the radio and hear the school glorified."

Also expressing the same enthusiasm for the program was Williams.

"I feel this program makes me a stronger person. It makes me more responsible and makes me feel great that I can make my school known," Williams said. "It's a very good program for those who are interested in radio. It gives me a lot of experience in radio and a chance to meet new people."

STOP DRUNK DRIVERS BEFORE THEY STOP YOU

Drive with Care
During the Holidays

Statistics show, you or someone close to you will one day stop a drunk driver on the road. Whether we like it or not, we are all "under the influence" of people who will drink too much and then get behind the wheel. And even though the laws are cracking down to catch offenders and drinking ages have been raised in all states, your best protection is to know your own limitations with alcohol. Make sure your family and friends are also aware by learning the facts, and not allowing anyone to drive while intoxicated.

Don't wait until you or someone you know stops a drunk driver on the road, before you discover the sobering consequences of mixing alcohol and driving.

In review: 1988 was a good year, county officials say

By TERRY JACOBY
ANP Staff Writer

Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara and local county commissioners agree that 1988 was a successful year for county government.

"A year ago I went to Lansing asking for help and told them that if things didn't change we would go bankrupt," McNamara said.

"And this was the first year we had a balanced budget since 1974, so I'd call it a successful year."

McNamara, obviously pleased with the Wayne County turnaround of '88, admits the job is not finished and plans to improve county finances even further this coming year.

"This year we want to continue and refine local government and improve our finance department."

A major reason for the balanced budget, according to McNamara, was an improved indigent health care program.

"With our new health program, we are saving $50,000 a day," he said. "This is a very impressive program and I believe a model for the whole nation."

"We now know who our patients are, which we never used to, and we will know next year what our costs will be. The program got us in the black and will keep us there."

McNamara was also pleased that the county will now be able to build a new jail.

"The jail millage will stop 3,000 prisoners from being released annually," he said. "We have three or four good possibilities for a location and this year we should start construction."

McNamara also supports formation of a department of corrections, which would replace the existing sheriff's department.

"We have a sheriff who runs it (the jail) now and it's not being run very well," he said. "There are no controls right now over the jail situation." McNamara has been in the middle of an ongoing feud with Sheriff Robert Ficano for some time.

McNamara also said county officials will be involved in the construction of a new morgue, the sewer, and the expansion of Detroit Metropolitan Airport.

"The airport expansion will create additional economic development for that area and more jobs," he said.

County Commissioners Milton Mack of Wayne and Kay Beard of Westland agree that 1988 was a very good year for Wayne County.

"We stabilized finances for the first time in two decades, dealt with the indigent health-care problem and got under way on solving our jail shortage problem," Mack said.

"With the addition of the jail millage, we will soon have a place to put people who commit misdemeanors," Beard said.

"It was a major step in trying to get a handle on the situation. And now we have to closely monitor the construction of the jail and get it started as soon as we can."

Mack also believes the year was successful for residents of western Wayne County.

"On a personal note, Haggerty Road was finally paved, we made progress in terms of dealing with noise problems and we drafted a solid waste program for the county," Mack said.

Mack has a long list of items he hopes are accomplished in the coming year.

"The first thing we will have to do is implement the construction of the jail and resolve the problem between the sheriff and county executive," he said.

"We have to deal with the solid waste program and try to address the concerns of the various communities, and we have to implement the noise control program for the airport."

"There is a lot to do in Wayne County, but we made a lot of progress and finally plugged the holes in the budget."

Beard agrees that there is a lot of work to be done this year.

"We have to get more involved in the question of the homeless and the AIDS problem," she said. "I think we are just seeing the tip of the iceberg when it comes to the AIDS problem."

Oath of office

The area representative on the Wayne County Community College Board of Trustees was sworn into office recently during special ceremonies at the WCCC main campus, in Detroit. Ted Scott (left), of Westland, was elected Nov. 8 to represent WCCC District 9, which includes Wayne, Westland, Inkster, Romulus, Belleville and Van Buren, Canton and Sumpter townships. Scott is the retired fire chief from Westland and is currently employed as the safety director for Wayne County. Special photo to ANP

Icy celebration

January ice show expected to sparkle in Plymouth

Instead of wishing for a white Christmas, Scott Lorenz is keeping his fingers crossed for a frosty January.

Lorenz, co-chairman of the Plymouth Ice Sculpture Spectacular, is hoping that temperatures will stay chilly enough to keep some 400 tons of display ice from melting during the 10-day event scheduled at Kellogg Park and surrounding streets.

The event — the seventh annual ice sculpture display — opens on Jan. 5 in downtown Plymouth, and can be viewed 24 hours a day through Jan. 15. All of the entries in the 1989 ice sculpture spectacular will be based on the theme, "YMCA and The American Family."

"The theme was chosen to help raise public awareness about the family programs of the YMCA, and, especially, the need for a permanent building in the Plymouth-Canton area," Lorenz said. "Because there is no permanent building, programs are being conducted here and there in borrowed facilities. This summer some of the swimming programs were conducted in backyard swimming pools.

"Our motive is first to raise awareness, and we hope that when that is accomplished, funds can be raised for a new facility," Lorenz said. "We feel hopeful that the Ice Spectacular will help to tell the story of how many services are provided to families in the Plymouth-Canton area by the YMCA."

Visitors may watch the actual carving of some of the ice sculpture displays during the opening days of the event and well as view several competitions, including:

- Student Chef Competition with participants from several colleges, Jan. 7;
- Three-man, five-block ice carving competition, 7 p.m. Jan. 11, and
- Professional Chefs Competition, featuring 100 hotel and restaurant chefs, 9 a.m. Jan. 14.

The Plymouth Winter Antique Show also is slated during the same period at the Plymouth Cultural Center.

The Plymouth Ice Sculpture Spectacular is slated for Jan. 5 to 15 on the streets of Plymouth, where artists and culinary chefs will display their masterpieces. ANP file photo

Winter snows bringing ordinance regulations

Officials in two of five area communities have approved resolutions that would allow the financially strapped Nankin Transit Commission to become a public, tax-levying authority.

Westland and Garden City officials have approved the restructuring, which would ensure the future of the local mass-transit connector service, according to Charles Hunter, NTC director. NTC serves residents in Wayne, Westland, Inkster, Garden City and Canton Township.

The bus service operates as a branch of the Southeastern Michigan Transportation Authority and receives federal and state funding.

The future of the local bus service has been jeopardized by decreasing funding from SEMTA. NTC officials believe the bleak financial picture could be improved if the NTC becomes an authority and has the power to levy a tax on residents in the five communities served.

NTC officials are seeking resolutions approving the move from each of the five communities. A special election would be necessary to consider the tax levy.

"We would like it that way," Hunter said. "It's all five or none. I don't know what steps we'll take if one of the communities doesn't approve it. We'll probably drop everything."

The 12 small buses operated by Nankin Transit are a crucial means of transportation for senior citizens and the handicapped, according to Hunter.

The buses are currently funded by all five communities and SEMTA. Despite plans by the state legislature to disman-

Good drivers are cited

Many Wayne County drivers received a surprise recently when they were pulled over for good driving habits.

Officials of the Wayne County Sheriff's Department stopped 50 drivers between 7 a.m. and 11 p.m. Dec. 14 and 15. Instead of traffic tickets, however, the drivers received $10 gift certificates for Farmer Jack. The certificates were offered as part of a countywide campaign to promote the importance of safe driving habits.

"Most people seemed to be puzzled," said Nancy Mouradian, spokeswoman for the sheriff's department. She said common responses to being pulled over were, "I thought I had stopped at the stop sign," the SEMTA and reorganize mass transit in southeast Michigan, Hunter expects the small-bus service to remain relatively unscathed.

NTC officials intend to ask for a .5-mill tax levy if the authority is approved. They could levy up to 3 mills each year, according to the structure of the authority.

A .5-mill tax increase would cost the owner of a home valued at $70,000 approximately $17.50 per year. The .5-mill levy would generate approximately $1.1 million each year.

However, Glenn Shaw, spokesman for NTC, said authority members wouldn't need the full $1.1 million unless SEMTA eliminated funding for small bus services.

A major stumbling block for the NTC is winning approval from members of the Canton Township Board of Trustees.

Canton Treasurer Gerald Brown said he is concerned that, once formed, an authority would be autonomous and have no local control. Authority members representing communities other than Canton Township could vote for millage requests without township approval, Brown said.

Former Canton Township Supervisor Jim Poole said that, without the millage, the service might be disbanded. The buses would not be operating today without $114,000 appropriated by state Sen. William Faust (D-Westland) as a last-minute measure, Poole said.

NTC officials need a decision on the restructuring soon, because the current NTC budget year ends in July. In addition, the state grant obtain by Sen. Faust will be depleted in July, according to Hunter.

Without future funding commitments, the fate of the bus service will again be in jeopardy, officials said.

and "I know that light was green."

Mouradian added that those who were stopped remained polite, despite their apprehension. They were immediately told, "We're stopping drivers who are doing something right today," said Mouradian.

Although this program has never been tried in Wayne County before, Mouradian said she hopes to see it repeated. "It went very well," she said. "It's a way of repaying that portion of the community that is very cautious and displays a courteous attitude."

Mouradian continued, "We're here to enforce our road patrol driving requirements... We tend to forget those who adhere to proper turn signals, who obey traffic signs and observe the posted speed limit."

Ask most people where they are going for the holidays, and they will reply, "Home."

It is traditional to spend Christmas at home, with friends and family gathered together and plenty of laughs and good times.

For some people unable to make it home for the holidays, Christmas is wherever and whatever they make it.

Sgt. Tracy Canale is a recruiter for the Marine Corps office in Wayne. Although he is not stationed in the Philippines or Guam, he is still far away from home - Oswego, N.Y.

"I sort of figured I would open a few presents," Canale said. "Maybe, I'll see the town. Of course, I'll get Christmas phone calls, spend a lot of time on the phone. I'm supposed to have Christmas dinner with some neighbors."

Canale arrived in Wayne July 29. He came from the Cherry Point Marine Corps Air Station, in North Carolina, where he was a fiscal accounting clerk in charge of $23 million in assets. He has received a Navy achievement medal for his efforts.

Detroit is his current home base.

"I was living in a hotel," he said. "I got tired of paying $30 a day."

Canale has two dogs - a snow-white shepherd named Butch and a cocker spaniel named Ginger.

He has spent a few Christmases in Japan, California and Korea.

"I spent my 18th birthday in Korea," Canale said. "It was great. They celebrate Christmas differently than we do. Here in America, Christmas is commercialized. Over there, it's a major celebration of life. People appreciate what the day is for more than what they get."

"The hardest thing is if you let loneliness get to you," Canale said. "If you can just try to keep yourself in the Christmas mood, that helps."

"When I'm spending time away from home, it helps to remember what it is I'm doing, in terms of furthering the defense of the United States. Just keep yourself up. Remember, at Christmas-time, you don't have to be with anybody," he continued.

Connie Hart, of Inkster, is a Peace Corps volunteer. For approximately three years, she spent her Christmases in Honduras. She currently works in the Peace Corps recruiting office in Detroit.

"I really wanted to help people in developing countries," Hart said, "and teach them some of the skills I knew."

Hart graduated from Central Michigan University with a degree in social work. She traveled to Honduras in June 1985. She learned how to speak Spanish, the native language, while on the job.

"It's somewhat hard being away from your family (during Christmas)," Hart said. "But the people love to celebrate. On Christmas Eve day, women spend the day making tamales."

"They put more emphasis on having a party. We view Christmas more as a family get-together. In Honduras, the family is there all the time."

Hart worked in the village of Brifas del Valle. Her responsibility was to establish cooperatives and women's groups. She helped construct a pig farm and a kindergarten and infant-feeding program.

During the Christmas holidays, Hart sends her parents, who live in Oscoda, a Christmas card and calls them from a phone in the nearest big city.

"I went down there thinking, 'these poor people.' But that's the life they've known. They're very happy people."

It's all part of the job

"Everybody works the shifts they're assigned. When you come into the job, you know what's expected," explained telephone operator Michelle Rouland, of Garden City.

Rouland works for the Wayne Answering Service and is scheduled for a shift on Christmas Day.

Rouland is not thrilled about working the holidays, especially because she will miss her baby's first Christmas. Nevertheless, the odd hours are a part of the job.

Debbie Jones has similar feelings. Jones will not be working at the answering service during the holidays, but she will be on duty at a local hospital. She works in the outpatient center, which is typically busier during the holidays than other times of the year.

"When you work somewhere that runs 24 hours, someone has to do it," she said.

Some people find working during Christmas quite profitable. Cyndi Zaidel, a waitress for Chuck Muer's restaurant, in Wayne, said she expects to gross at least $100 in tips when she works Christmas Eve. She does not expect an unpleasant evening.

"This whole week before Christmas people have been nice. Of course, we've been in the spirit with them," Zaidel said.

Co-worker Susan Hortsman agreed that most customers are pleasant during the holiday season. However, the rapport among the workers is what helps make the holiday shift less unpleasant.

Hortsman always worked the holiday shift at a former hotel job.

"Hotels never close," she said. "It never seemed busy enough where we thought it should stay open."

Christmas, no matter where it is spent, is special for Dawn Burchart. A nursing assistant at Four Chaplains Convalescent Center, Burchart finds the holiday season very rewarding.

"It's not all that bad as people think," she said. Patients at the center receive more visitors during the holidays than at other times of the year. Workers at the center treat each other like family members, and, usually, members of the kitchen staff prepare a holiday meal.

"You know you're not the only one working," Burchart explained.

Holiday home fulfills need

Psychologist urges logical expectations

By JOAN MARY DYER
Belleville City Editor

I'll be home for Christmas - if only in my dreams.

Originally, the World War II-era song expressed the longing of those separated by wartime events to return home to their loved ones for the holidays. The song, however, has survived through peacetime to become a seasonal classic, and has been adopted by many who find themselves away from family and friends at Christmas - due to business, school commitments, job transfers, travel obligations or illness.

As evidenced by the crowded airport terminals, bus stations, train depots and freeways, Christmas is the time to go home. When that is not a possibility, then - evidenced by the flood of long-distance telephone calls - we must call home and, at least, be there in our dreams, according to Roger Dallwig, director of Her Place/His Place Counseling Center.

"Our need to be home for the holidays stems from several things - the need to be wanted, to belong and to be a part of the holidays. All of these things seem to be fulfilled by the family," Dallwig said. "In our mobile society, where we are often separated from our families, the holidays place the emphasis on the family togetherness that we seek."

Dallwig said there is a desire to recapture our childhood Christmases and to recreate our "Christmas Past."

"When we were children, we looked at the holidays with an aura of magic. We saw the holidays as a joyful time, and may not have been aware of any crisis or stress that was experienced within the family at that time," Dallwig said.

"As adults, we tend to feel that we can bring all of the closeness and good feelings back, and that we can intensify our love for each other during the Christmas season."

Dallwig said that individuals tend to have the unrealistic expectation that the holidays will be "serene and untroubled, and for just this one time our families will be magically transformed" - past differences will be resolved, those who bore grudges will forever and forget and everyone will enjoy each other's company. Instead, he said, individuals must approach the holidays with the knowledge that situations and attitudes of the past 12 months probably will continue through the holidays.

On the other hand, Dallwig said, some people feel they must go home for the holiday out of a sense of obligation. They may feel it is expected of them even though they may have mixed feelings about the visit and experience tension about the past parent-child disagreement they experienced.

Vikings travel to Benton Harbor in quest of win

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

With one of their worst basketball starts and Christmas behind them, Coach George Thompson and his Inkster High Vikings packed up their gear this week and headed for Benton Harbor.

That's where Thompson hopes to find the prescription for the ills that have floored his cagers three of the four times they have played this season.

The problem is that the Vikings don't have a "take charge" kind of player, according to the Viking coach. The lineup is sprinkled with plenty of inexperience.

"In time, I believe we're going to have a decent team," Thompson said. "But we have to get a couple of solid victories under our belts."

Moreover, it isn't going to be easy at Benton Harbor. The north folks are noted for their physical brand of basketball, but they receive a little publicity down in the south and, therefore, little is known of them until the post-season playoffs.

Inkster has drawn Detroit Finney in the first round of the holiday tournament. The opener is scheduled for 6 p.m. Friday. In the nightcap, slated for 8 p.m., the host clashes with Detroit Denby.

The championship will be decided the following evening. The two losers will square off at 6 p.m. in the consolation game, and immediately following that contest, the two winners will play for the tournament title.

"The kids are looking forward to the trip up north," Thompson said. "It's an experience that helps bring the team together."

In the meantime, Leit Jones, athletic director at Robichaud High, said that there will be no tickets sold at the door for the Jan. 10 Inkster High - Robichaud basketball game.

The meeting will be the first for the two neighboring and Suburban Athletic Conference opponents.

"Because of the overwhelming demand for such tickets," Jones said, "we have restricted the ticket sales to the high schools."

The two archrivals usually play before standing room only crowds. And this year there is no indication that the tradition will not continue.

Tigers blast Rockets

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

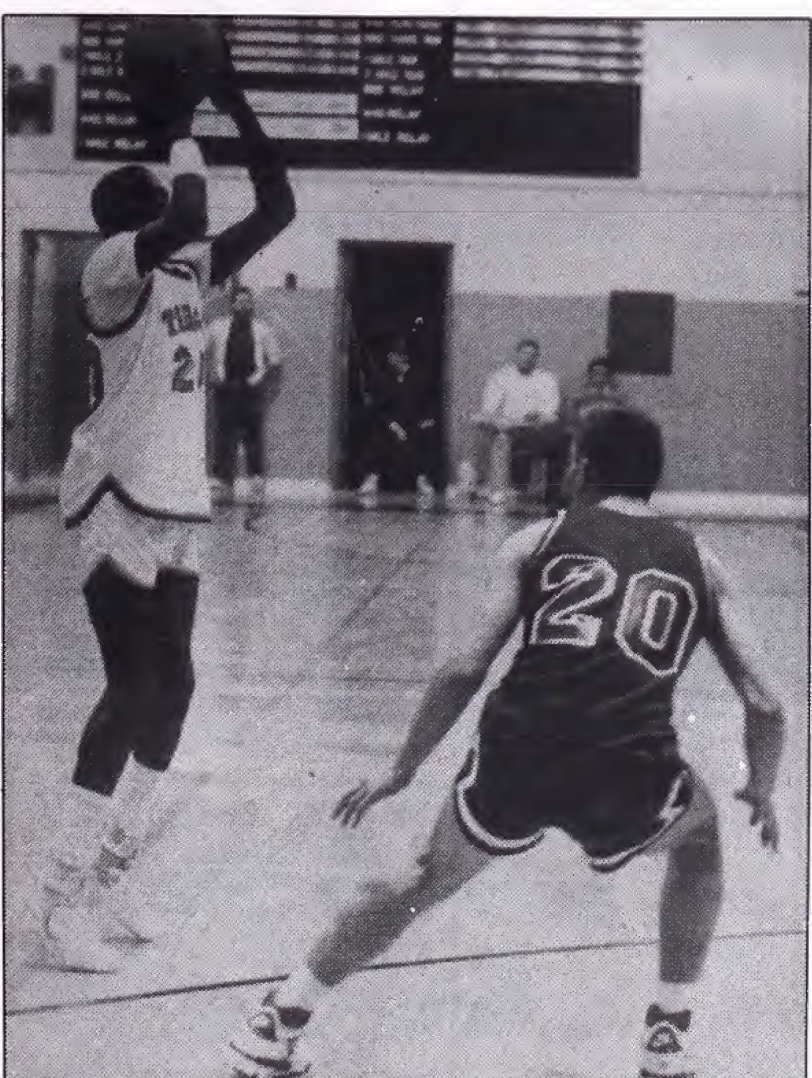

Outscoring Westland John Glenn 22-5 in the second period, Belleville jolted the Rockets 85-50 in a nonconference basketball game last Tuesday.

The victory brought the curtains down on the 1988 phase of the season for both schools. Coach Michael Garland's Tigers took time out to enjoy the holidays and a 4-1 overall record. Their lone loss was inflicted by Dearborn Fordson in a Wolverine 'A' Conference game.

"The kids broke it open in the second period," Garland said as he prepares for a key contest in January with title-hopeful Monroe. "It was close for the first eight minutes, then Kevin (Hunter) and Brantley found the range."

Hunter sank eight of his 22 points and Brantley had seven of his 22 in that turnaround second period that lifted the Tigers to a lopsided 44-26 halftime advantage. The outcome of the game was never in doubt after the initial half.

Hunter was deadly from the three-point range. He fired in six of his 10 attempts from outside the three-point arch and also made both of his free throws plus a two-pointer to share individual scoring honors with Brantley.

Brantley's brother, Andre, had his best game of the season and he contributed 14 points. Andre made six of seven at the free throw line to go along with his four field goals.

The Westlanders managed to stay in the game in that first period thanks to the scoring efforts of Bob Lawrence and Chris Poplin. Both finished in double figures for the evening. Lawrence made four from the field and three of four at the free throw line for 14, while Poplin chipped in 13.

The Tigers will have to improve at the free throw line if they want to stay in the title hunt. Against the Rockets, they cashed in on 13 of 22. Glenn made seven of nine offerings.

Huron nudges Eagles off of top cage perch

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

Ann Arbor Huron apparently caught league-leading Romulus looking ahead last Tuesday to the holidays and jolted Coach Dan Henry's cagers 65-47 in a crucial game for both teams.

The loss shook up the Eagles, who had to move over on the top perch of the South Central Conference to make room for Ann Arbor Pioneer. Pioneer turned back previously undefeated Adrian to climb into a two-way tie for first place with Romulus.

"I don't know what we were thinking about out there tonight," said Henry, "but it wasn't basketball. It's the worst game we have played all year. I hope that that is all behind us."

Romulus and Pioneer have each won two of their three SAC confrontations as the 1988 phase of the league campaign comes to a close. The two could meet at the Lansing Eastern Holiday Tournament later this week.

Romulus, Pioneer, and Lansing Eastern will be joined by Traverse City to play in the holiday invitational which is slated to begin tonight (Wednesday, Dec. 28) at 6:30 p.m. in the Eastern Arena.

Romulus will meet Traverse City at 6:30 p.m., with Eastern taking on Pioneer at 8:30. The two winners will play for the title at 8 p.m. on Thursday. (The consolation game will precede the championship.)

Sluggish from the start, Romulus couldn't find its composure against the River Rats of Huron who overcame a one-point halftime deficit (24-23) by ripping off the first 10 points of the third period.

James Davis, a junior guard, led the River Rat scoring assault as he scored eight of his game high 26 points in that turnaround third period. His 26 stood up as the game high. Teammate Carlos Williams also scored in double figures. He had 12.

Romulus, which scored 12 points in each of their first three periods and 11 in the finale, looked pathetic. Nothing appeared to go right for the overanxious Eagles, who apparently sorely needed the full-time services of Arol Trinity.

Trinity suffered a lower back injury earlier in the week and was less than 100 percent against the River Rats. The Eagles also looked helpless at the free throw line where they canned an anemic four of 15 chances. Huron capitalized on 13 of 25 opportunities.

Grayam Scott, the Eagles' 6-9 center, managed to hit on six field goals and made one of six charities for a team-high 13 points. The only other Romulus cager to reach the two-digit scoring mark was Virgil Davis, who checked in with 10.

Romulus will take a 2-1 SCC and an even 3-3 overall record into the tournament tonight.

Trenton favored to win Romulus volleyball title

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

Eight area teams, including the defending champ, Trenton, will invade Romulus High tomorrow morning to participate in the Fifth Annual Eagles' Volleyball Invitational.

And if any of the seven teams want the title, they will have to take it away from Trenton, according to Romulus Coach Gail Coleman.

"We have an excellent field this year," said Coleman, whose Eagles are taking a 5-1 overall mark into the tournament. "But, personally I feel if you want the title you're going to have to beat Trenton for it."

The field will also include Jackson High School, Oakland Catholic, Riverview Gabriel Richard, and Flint Central.

Coleman isn't counting her club out of the running, but she feels that she will have to get 100 percent from each member of the club in order to surface as the winner.

Competition will begin at 8:30 a.m. tomorrow at Romulus.

In the meantime, Romulus' spikers, a team that finished fourth in the conference a year ago, launched their South Central Conference season last week with a close and thrilling victory over Ann Arbor Pioneer. The Eagles won the first set 15-12, then dropped a cliffhanger 17-15 and bounced back and routed their rivals, 15-9, for the victory.

Romulus also finished second in a field of 10 competing teams at the Taylor Invitational.

It takes a lot of work to be a champion. But if we want the title, we will have to take it away from Ann Arbor Huron.

— Gail Coleman
Romulus volleyball coach

Coleman's volleyballers have posted victories over Oak Park, Wyandotte and Taylor Kennedy. The Eagles' battle plans have on the front lines notables Michelle Scarrow, Kim Picciano, Mikki DiBenedetto, Laurie Berlin, Julie Machcinski and Jennifer Daniel.

The Romulus roster also includes Pammy Trubilowicz, Chris Stratton, and Susan Cowens in the lineup.

In her seventh year as the Eagle coach, Coleman sees this year's squad as "one with a lot of potential and spirit."

Does the Romulus see her volleyballers climbing from a fourth-place finish (last year) to the top of the South Central Conference? It could happen, if things fall into place for Romulus, according to their coach.

"It takes a lot of work to be a champ - and these kids can do anything they want to do. But we will have to beat Huron (Ann Arbor) if we want the SCC championship," Coleman added.

Trenton can't stop Belleville

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

If the rest of the swimming season goes as well for Belleville and Coach Bill Snider as it did last week against Trenton, you won't hear the Tigers complaining about a thing.

Belleville breezed past Trenton, 108-65, for their second consecutive Wolverine 'A' Conference victory in as many starts. The Tigers have a 4-1 overall record as the 1988 phase of the season ends.

Snider said his swimmers swam well in spots, and apparently had to overcome a flu or cold-like virus.

"I don't know what it is," Snider commented, "but some of my kids were ill. It looks like a cold - in fact, I am fighting it myself. And I've talked to a couple of coaches and they said that their teams have been affected, too."

Whatever it was, Belleville didn't let it stop it. With Duane Townsend coasting in two individual events and participating on the winning 200-yard medley relay, the Tigers swept eight of the possible 11 events.

Townsend was clocked in the winning time of 24.4 for the 50-yard freestyle. He also turned in with the winning time for the 100-yard freestyle (54.9) and earlier had joined Brian Bogardus, Scott Sikes, and Eric Snider to make up the medley relay team. The foursome won the event in a 1:50.6.

Belleville also captured a first place in the 200-yard freestyle as Michael Bird checked in with a 1:58.61. Teammate Snider also won in the 200-yard individual medley. He was clocked in 2:09.56.

The Tigers received a winning performance out of Kevin Killough who finished first in the 100-yard butterfly in 1:05.78, and Bogardus set

Romulus wrestlers are 'perfect'

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

It's been a 'perfect' year for Romulus High wrestlers and first-year coach Norm Butler.

The Eagles stretched their dual meet winning streak to six last week at the expense of Southgate Anderson, 49-16. The defending South Central Conference champs have yet to test the conference strength.

Butler and his grapplers will not rest during the 10-day holidays, but they are scheduled to participate in the Ohio Invitational. After the New Year their first dual meet will be against none other than Ypsilanti (Jan. 10), a team that covets the SCC crown.

Against Anderson, the tri-Wolverine 'A' Conference champs, Romulus dominated the meet. The Eagles won 10 of the 13 matches, claiming three via pins, one by a fall and a fifth by forfeit.

That forfeit occurred in the heavyweight where Romulus'

Paul Nowicki took all of 30 seconds to convince his opponent to throw in the towel.

Here are the results of the Romulus - Anderson meet:

103 - Bill Gehringer (R) pinned Danny Moore(SA), 3:25
112 - Dustin Pawlak (SA) pinned David Caines(R), 3:03
119 - David Gehringer (R) pinned Matt Nyikars(SA), 4:34

the pace for the 100-yard backstroke. He won that event in 59.83.

Snider had the winning lineup in the 400-yard freestyle relay as Joe Bongiorono, Duff, Bird and Snider covered the distance in 3:36.70.

Belleville travels to Trenton on Friday to compete in an invitational in which team scores are not compiled. Snider explained that during the holidays, many teams are without team members who may be vacationing with their families.

"Therefore, the invitational is geared for individual rather than team scores," Snider explained.

However, after the New Year, the Belleville coach will find out just how good his swimmers are. The Tigers face two of the better teams in the area in Plymouth Canton and Monroe.

Canton recently won the Western Lakes Conference relays championships and Monroe, the defending Wolverine 'A' Conference champs, has monopolized the conference crown for nearly a decade.

REDUCE YOUR HEART DISEASE RISKS: EAT RIGHT, EXERCISE, QUIT SMOKING

By Cheng-Chong Lee, M.D.

While heart disease still is a leading illness among Americans, having a heart attack today does not automatically carry a death sentence. As I discussed last week in this column, millions of Americans fully recover from their heart attacks and go on to live active lives.

However, returning to a normal way of life means you must be committed to reducing, or altogether eliminating, the three primary health risks that lead to heart disease—high blood cholesterol, high blood pressure, and cigarette smoking.

CUT FAT, CHOLESTEROL FROM YOUR DIET

One of the first steps you must take is to reduce the amount of cholesterol and saturated fat in your diet, which will in turn lessen the amount of cholesterol in your blood.

Maintain a well-balanced diet that is less than 30 percent fat. Avoid foods such as fatty red meat, cheese, whole milk, chocolate, coconut, eggs, and organ meat. Instead, eat fish, skinless poultry, nonfat dairy products, water-soluble fiber such as oat bran and legumes (beans and peas), and plenty of fresh fruit and vegetables.

Besides changing your diet, your physician can prescribe medication that can lower blood cholesterol to a desirable level.

STOP SMOKING, START EXERCISING

Smoking is a health hazard for everyone, but it's a triple threat to heart attack victims because it: (1) decreases the amount of oxygen supplied to the body; (2) damages the arterial walls, thus increasing the chance for cholesterol buildup; and (3) heightens oxygen demand by raising heart rate and blood pressure.

Therefore, it is vitally important to quit smoking.

Changes in diet and losing weight can help lower high blood pressure, the third primary risk factor. In addition to monitoring the fats you consume, it's very important to lower salt intake, since salt contributes to high blood pressure which can overwork the heart and injure arterial walls.

Another positive step toward healthy living is exercise. Increasing the amount of exercise you engage in can cause weight loss; lower blood pressure; increase the presence of high-density lipoproteins (HDL), or "good" cholesterol; and relieve stress.

Of course, you should first consult your physician before beginning any exercise or weight loss program.

If you change the way you live, chances are that not only will you lessen the possibility of a repeat attack, but you will also feel healthier and happier than you did before your heart attack.

Robichaud swimmers end year on low note

Hadley: 'We have potential to win but are not working at it'

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

It wasn't supposed to end that way. Not for Coach Jim Hadley. Or the Bulldog swim team.

City rivals are supposed to bring the best out of athletes. "We just didn't swim hard," said Hadley, after the Bulldogs of Robichaud High were dunked 96-76 at the hands of Annapolis High. "They whacked us pretty good and, the unfortunate thing about all of this is that our kids are better."

"We have the potential to beat Annapolis, and Willow Run. And it all comes down to the fact that we have not been swimming hard."

Willow Run turned back Robichaud earlier this month and moved into the driver's seat of the Suburban Athletic Conference. The Bulldogs are just going along for the ride, if things don't change drastically, according to the Robichaud coach.

"We got a lot of talent on this team," Hadley added. "The bottom line is - work. And I mean hard work."

Robichaud did manage to pick up four of the 11 first places. Two of those victories belonged to Robbie Patrick, who turned in a 2:28.9 in winning the 200-yard individual medley. He also won the 100-yard backstroke with a 1:06.7.

Patrick also was a member of the Robichaud 200-yard medley relay team that finished in the winning time of 1:57.6. He joined Robert Stewart, Tony Lario and Gerald Petrie to make up the lineup for the relay.

The only other victory went to Stewart, who churned out a 1:12.1 in the 100-yard breaststroke.

The Bulldogs have until January 10 to work on improving their times and performances. They finished the 1988 phase of the campaign with a 2-2 overall record but are looking up at the Flyers of Willow Run in the SAC standings.

Hadley's Bulldogs will host Dexter on Jan. 12 for their first dual meet of the New Year. They'll follow that up with another nonleague confrontation with a city rival, Dearborn Heights Crestwood, also at home but at 4 p.m.

Bulldogs are no match for Brother Rice

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

You can bet that Robichaud cagers will put in a lot of overtime during the holidays.

After a heartbreaking loss to Willow Run in the Suburban Athletic Conference and a trouncing last Wednesday at the hands of Birmingham Brother Rice, Robichaud sophomore coach Monte Dennard must be taking a second and hard look at his lineup to see if he can get more mileage - and baskets - from his team.

Brother Rice, a perennial power in basketball, jolted the Dearborn Heights cagers 80-33 in a nonconference tilt.

"We didn't look good at all," Dennard said. "And we are going to have to get back to playing basic basketball."

The Bulldogs will have 10 days to get ready for the second phase of the 1988-89 campaign. They finished 1988 with a 3-3 won-lost record.

On January 3, they'll return to host Inkster Baptist, a team that shouldn't be a problem for the Bulldogs. However, on Friday, Jan. 10, Robichaud will entertain neighborhood and natural rival, Inkster.

And Dennard's Bulldogs

can't afford a letdown against the Vikings and hope to realistically remain in the SAC title chase. They are the defending co-champs of the conference.

One of the bright spots - and there were only a few - against Brother Rice was the return to the lineup of injured Eric Thomas. Although the Robichaud quarterback is still rusty, he managed to chip in a team high 15 points. An ankle injury had kept him on the sidelines for the first five games of the year.

Robichaud also had two other players in double figures. Rod James accounted for 13 and Michael Aaron scored 10 points.

Travel TALK

FROM Emily's World

TRAVEL, LTD.

Emily Guetier

KENYA'S BEAUTY AND DIVERSITY

Kenya is a diverse land of mountains, lakes, and plains where man, bird and beast mingle in mutual respect and harmony. The vast wide open spaces of the East African country and the profusion of wildlife and prized native artistry make Kenya enormously appealing. "Safari" is the Swahili word for "journey," and in Kenya, the safari excursions are nothing short of fabulous. One of the most famous takes place in the Masai Mara range, 7000 acres of rolling grasslands and acacia woodlands. This huge game preserve teems with large and exotic herds of wild game. Herds of buffalo, zebra, gazelle, wildebeest and elephant roam at will, as do prides of black-maned lions and rarer species such as the Topi and Roan antelope. I will be escorting a group to Kenya July 12 to 26 visiting the Masai as well as other game parks, Amboseli, Tsavo, Aberdare and Samburu. With the higher elevation (up to 7000 feet), even though Kenya is located on the equator the weather is delightful - average daily temperature in July in the low 70's. If you are interested in a spectacular holiday, give us a call and we will forward the detailed itinerary for your consideration. Best wishes for a healthy and Happy New Year from everyone at Emily's World!

CAYMAN CHOICES

The Cayman Islands in themselves give you a choice of three Caribbean vacations: sophisticated, casual, or desert-island type.

The sophisticated island is Grand Cayman — busy, with high-rise hotels, top shops, and multiple restaurants. The Grand Old House restaurant is run by Chef Tell of TV fame.

Cayman Brac has just three small hotels, few restaurants and no nightlife to speak of. A haven for skindivers, there are few tourist traps, just an old town and unspoiled beaches to explore.

Little Cayman offers two hotels, both lovely. It's the place for privacy, with fewer than 20 year-round residents. If you want to be even more alone, you can borrow a boat to visit tiny offshore islands on your own.

ORDER TO ANSWER PUBLICATION
AT A SESSION of said Court held in the courthouse in the City of Romulus, Wayne County, Michigan on December 9, 1988.
PRESENT: Honorable Henry Zaborowski, District Court Judge
On November 20, 1988 an action was filed by Edmund A. Lagness and Rose Marie Lagness, the plaintiffs, against Cam M. Belcher and Mary Ellen Belcher, his wife, defendants in this court to forfeit the interest of the defendants in a certain Land Contract dated September 13, 1978, for failure to pay the payments on said land contract. IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that the defendants, Cam M. Belcher and Mary Ellen Belcher, shall file an Answer in the 34th District Court located at 11131 Wayne Road, Romulus, Michigan 48184, and serve a copy on Richard B. Weinberg, one of the Attorneys for the plaintiffs, whose address is 3151 S. Wayne Road, Wayne, Michigan 48184, or take such other action as may be permitted by law on or before the 18th day of February, 1989. IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that a copy of this Order be published once each week for three (3) consecutive weeks in the Wayne County newspaper.
IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the first publication of the Order shall be within seven (7) days from the date of entry of this Order and that prior to the date of the first publication a copy of this Order, a copy of this Order be enclosed in a properly sealed envelope with postage fully prepaid bearing a return address of plaintiffs' attorney and the same be deposited in the United States mail addressed to the defendants at 12392 Oak, Carleton, Michigan, this being the defendants' last known address.

"The great American road belongs to me and my Reatta."

"I get looks! I get stares! I feel great!"

Reatta

"I never dreamed I could own one."

"I'll hold on to it forever. . . Reatta, I love you!"

It takes a special breed of car to command the Great American Road. The 1989 Buick Reatta is a royal part of that breed. Reatta is sporty. Reatta is powerful. Reatta is luxurious. Reatta is, above all, a Buick. An exacting attention to detail has created a car that seems like a step into America's past. Reatta is quality, not quantity. Unlike a traditional assembly line, which moves at its own relentless pace, a computer-controlled Automatic Guided Vehicle moves the Reatta body and chassis to each craft station, where it is joined with the appropriate componentry. The Guided Vehicle moves to the next craft station only after the workers decide that their portion of the assembly process is finished according to demanding specifications. That is why the body surface of each Reatta is prepared by hand before paint is applied. Hand-buffing of the final clearcoat ensures a depth of lustre that is truly remarkable. Power. Performance. Luxury. Style. That's the 1989 Buick Reatta, a motorcar of uncommon practicality.
